

Detailed Income Disclosure Statement

As a JIFU Distributor you are able to participate in three ways:

1. You can purchase products at the wholesale price for personal use
2. You can make a retail profit by buying products at wholesale and then reselling them to your customers directly, or by your customers purchasing products through your replicated JIFU distributor website.
3. You can earn commissions from the sales generated by others in your organization.

Earning Money:

Commissions are only earned through the sale of products. You cannot earn money simply from recruiting or enrolling someone. To earn a commission from the sale of a product you must be a Distributor. Customers are not eligible to earn commissions.

If commissions earned by distributors exceeds 60% of the revenue generated, JIFU reserves the right to proportionally cap commissions companywide.

Important information to know before becoming a JIFU Distributor:

- JIFU distributors are independent contractors of JIFU GLOBAL FZCO and its related companies.
- JIFU distributors are not required to carry any inventory.
- JIFU distributors set their own schedule and choose how and when they want to work.
- JIFU distributors must be honest and truthful in how they work and sell products. If a distributor is found to be acting unethically they will be contacted by the JIFU compliance team and terminated as a distributor if necessary.
- Building a successful book of business requires hard work, time, and expense. Expenses may include car expenses, advertising costs, secretarial assistance, or tax assistance, in addition to the distributor fee that distributors pay once every 4 weeks.
- Like all businesses, some distributors will succeed while others do not. There is no guarantee that commissions will be earned by becoming a distributor.
